County Sunday Schools Begin First Session

Rev. Darling Talks on Need of Definite Aim in Sunday School Work --Business Session to be Held This Morning--To Discuss Graded Lesson System.

Rev. W. H. Darling, general secretary of the Ohio Sunday school association, made the opening address of the Coshocton County Sunday school convention at its first session held Tuesday evening at the Church of Christ, corner Main and Eighth.

"The needs of the Sunday School" was Rev. Darling's subject and he said that most of all the Sunday Schools needs a definite, positive purpose. "There is no other organization I know of" said he, "in which there is so much wasted energy as in the church and Sunday school. And it is so because we have no definite aim. The Sunday school is the teaching service of church—the evangelistic arm and through it 85 percent of the members come into the church. Christianity is primarily a teaching religion and it is through its teachers that it must be carried to humanity. The teacher in the Sunday school stands in the place of Christ to his class and should therefore have a real purpose in the message he brings to that class."

A Definite Aim.

"Having a definite aim," said the minister," we next need to know the thing we are attempting to do. Understand the needs of those we want to teach. And, understanding their needs, go out and get them into the Sunday school. There are mighty few people who cannot be won if we get on the job and stick there and show them that we mean business. But our responsibility does not end when we have brought them into the Sunday school. It is only when we have won them into the Kingdom that our work is finished. And I believe it is just as possible to win them into the Kingdom as into the Sunday school. When this is our one great purpose and aim it can be done. When the teacher, the preacher and the pupils put their life into the saving of souls they will be saved."

Business Session.

The business session of the convention will begin this morning at 9 o'clock. Mrs. Curtis, state secretary of primary work, will talk on, "The Advantage of the Graded Lesson System." Mrs. Mina Stewart will discuss "The Girl Problem" and Rev. D. C. Boyd will discuss, "The Boy Problem." Rev. C. H. Hood will talk on, "An Enlarged Vision."

In the afternoon Mrs. Hudson will answer the question, "Why have a Teacher's Training Class?" and Prof. L. C. Shaw will tell "How a School Can Maintain Teacher Training Work." Sectional conferences will be a feature of this session and Rev. Mr. Darling will conduct the round table at the conclusion of these conferences.

Bale Will Talk.

Hon. F. G. Bale, of Canton, will give the closing address of the convention at 7:30 this evening.

A large number of delegates from all sections of the county are attending the convention. Rev. J. F. Stamm, of Loudenville, formerly pastor of the Roscoe M. E. church, president of the Coshocton County organization, presided at last night's meeting.

SALESMAN ATTEMPTS SUICIDE BY CUTTING ARTERY WITH RAZOR

Charles Barr Threatens to Murder Wife and Family After Slashing Wrist Three Times -- Officer Arrives in Time to Prevent Fatalities -- Barr Will Recover.

Charles Barr, aged 42, a salesman residing at 129 Main street, was being held at the City prison at an early hour this morning following an unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide. Barr had inflicted three deep gashes in each wrist in attempts to sever the arteries when he was placed under arrest and taken to the station where he was attended by Dr. F. M. Marshall. An insane fit of rage prompted by family troubles, it is said, was the cause of his rash act.

About twelve o'clock last night, a son of the would-be suicide rushed into the police station and amid terrified sobs told Officer Hagans that his father had tried to kill himself and was threatening to kill the family.

THREATENS FAMILY.

Upon arriving at the home, Officer Hagans found Barr with a razor in his hands threatening to murder the family. Blood was flowing from several deep gashes in his wrists. Hagans knocked the razor from Barr's hand and placed him under arrest. Towels were then wrapped tightly about his wrists so as to staunch the flow of blood. Barr was then taken to the police station, where Dr. Marshall was called and with several stitches closed his wounds which were made on the inner side of the forearm but missed the arteries. He will recover.

Barr has a wife and four children and it is said, barring occasional fits of emotional insanity, has always born an excellent reputation.

Commissioners Undecided As To New System

Court Dissolves Injunction Restraining County From Installing New Lighting System At Court Square--New Board Will Have to Talk It Over Before Taking Action.

The county commissioners are now at liberty to proceed with the installation of the new lighting system at the court square as the injunction obtained recently by W. H. Baehert, was dissolved in common pleas court Tuesday afternoon. The case was dismissed on the plaintiff's motion and the costs were settled by him.

On account of the fact that the decision to install a new and more modern lighting system in and around the court square was made by the former board of county commissioners, it is not known whether or not the present board will proceed with the work.

County Commissioners C. C. Porter and Matthew Crawford said last night that the board would not make a decision in the matter until Friday when the members will be together.

Wants To Know

"I do not know what action we will take in the matter," said commissioner Crawford to The Tribune last night. "We have not inspected the contract as yet. We will have to have a clear understanding with the Coshocton Light & Heating Co. as to their terms before anything is done. As the matter stands now, the county has no contract stipulating the price of current furnished by the company for use in the proposed new system. We have the old contract which governs the price of current used in the present lighting system but I do not think that has any bearing on the standard lighting system."

Republicans Are Optimistic Over Various Reports

An enthusiastic meeting of Republican workers was held at the court house Tuesday evening when reports from various sections of the city were made. Each worker was highly optimistic and the reports show that the Richardson backers are confident of his election next Tuesday. They also appear to be quite confident of the success of the entire Republican ticket.

Party Behind Him

"We are confident that the Republican party will support Richardson with undivided strength," said a member of the campaign committee following the meeting, "and the same applies to the remainder of the ticket."

"The reports we received tonight," continued the Republican, "were from every section of the city. They indicate that Richardson is gaining strength every day. Always having been a working man himself, he will poll a heavy vote with the laboring class we believe. Our present active campaign will be continued until the polls close next Tuesday evening."

A FAITHFUL FRIEND.

W. H. Roller, blacksmith at Bacon, Linton twp., believes he owns a hammer the record of which it would be hard to equal. For fifty-four years Mr. Roller has used this same hammer in his business without laying it aside for a single day even for repairs.

The hammer was made 65 years ago by Ernest Kuntz, then smithy at Adamsville and under whom Mr. Roller learned his trade.

MILK GOES UP.

An increase in the cost of production is the reason assigned by Coshocton dairymen for the raise in the price of milk from 7 to 8 cents.

Announcement of the increase was made Tuesday. Milk has been selling here for 7 cents for the last two years.

Party of Four Injured As Auto Turns Turtle

Enroute from Coshocton to their homes in the Cole Ridge vicinity between Tiverton Center and Brinkhaven, a party of four unknown men, said to have been under the influence of liquor, were thrown from their auto when the machine was ditched while being driven at an excessive speed. The men sustained severe cuts about the head from pieces of flying glass from the broken windshield and several severe bruises. No bones were broken and a physician was not summoned.

The accident occurred near the home of Joseph Markley, who was aroused by the noise of the crash and went to the assistance of the autoists. He found that the driver of the machine, it is said, had turned his head or taken his attention from the road for a second and the machine had started up a steep bank and turned turtle. The machine was damaged so badly that it was impossible for the party to proceed in the auto. Mr. Markley took the parties to their homes in his auto, it is said. Markley, however, refused to give any information in regard to the matter when questioned last night.

Warsaw Plans Big Rally For Pioneer Prohibitionist

Warsaw dry workers have everything in readiness for one of the largest dry rallies in the history of the village, when John G. Wooley will give an address there this evening.

Mr. Wooley is a pioneer Prohibitionist and has moved audiences from one end of the country to the other, by his eloquence, for the last thirty years. Three different times he has been his party's candidate for president. As an orator, he is said by those who have heard him, to have few equals.

Today and tomorrow the county will be covered by dry workers, including Fred G. Bale, district superintendent of the Anti-saloon league and Wayne B. Wheeler, president of the organization. Thursday night Mr. Wheeler will take at Fresno and Mr. Bale at New Moscow.

Indications Point To Big Vote By The Women

"Every woman in Coshocton out to vote," this is the slogan of the women who are conducting the campaign to elect Mrs. Rose T. Trott as member of the Board of Education.

On one of two other occasions a few women of the city have timidly ventured out to vote for the only office for which they are given this privilege, but with one of their own sex on the ticket for the first time, it is generally conceded that the women intend turning out in large numbers to avail themselves of the privilege.

Sample ballots are being printed and Friday morning the captains of each ward will start out their corps of workers into every precinct, to instruct the women how to vote for the woman candidate. These instructions are made necessary owing to the fact that Mrs. Trott's candidacy was not announced in time for her name to be printed on the ticket and therefore must be written in and the usual cross affixed opposite, if the ballot is to be counted.

Patterson Has Record Wheat Yield

Reports from various parts of the county indicate that the yield of staple crops on hill land this year are not only exceptionally large, but of excellent quality.

J. W. Patterson, a well known Clark township farmer of the Bloomfield vicinity stated yesterday to a reporter for The Morning Tribune that he has just threshed the wheat from six acres of hill land and that it yielded 216 bushels, or an average of 36 bushels to the acre.

Mr. Patterson states that the wheat is fine in quality and that the best quality of corn in that locality is hill corn.

Crawfo'd Is Called By Death

W. E. Crawford, aged 74, died at the City hospital about one o'clock this morning after a long illness from locomotor ataxia. He had been confined at the City hospital for almost three years during which time he had been a hopeless invalid.

He is survived by a daughter, Miss Mary Crawford, of New York City, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Nelson, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a brother, James Crawford, of Fort Collins, Colo. A sister, Miss Georgia Crawford died here at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Johnson less than two weeks ago.

Mr. Crawford was at one time owner of the present McKeown and Settle dry goods store and was a prominent business man. At an early hour this morning no funeral arrangements had been made.

LEAVING TOWN

Henry Mitchell, who for several years has conducted a dry cleaning shop in the city, has closed out his business and expects to move to Zanesville.

JITNEYS WILL NOT OPERATE AFTER SUNDAY

Weiskircher Bros. Announce They Will Quit Business—Local Men Interested

After Sunday Coshocton will be without regular jitney service unless local men can be influenced to take up the project and continue the service instituted here by the Weiskircher Brothers. This announcement was made Tuesday by the proprietors after Joseph Weiskircher, having purchased a dairy and ice cream business at Martin's Ferry, had decided to move to that city and devote his entire time and capital to that business.

Feeling financially unable to take care of the jitney service here, his brother Charles Weiskircher announced that he also would withdraw from the business. Unless local men can be persuaded to take over and operate the cars, they will be stored in the [illegible] garage until disposed of by the owners.

The Weiskircher brothers declared that the business here had been good, although since the [illegible] there had been a slump in their patronage. It was expected however that this would increase with the coming of bad weather when people would be unwilling to walk through slush and cold weather. It is understood that a number of local men are interested in the proposition of taking over the lines and operating them. It was said last night, however, that nothing definite had yet been decided upon.

Mrs. Bressler Wants Divorce

On the grounds of extreme cruelty and gross neglect of duty, Rebecca J. Bressler commenced divorce proceedings against Roscoe L. Bressler in probate court Tuesday. They were married April 29, 1900, and have two children. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant has failed to provide for her or their children and that he uses vile and abusive language in addressing her. She asks the court to prevent him from disposing of his property and asks that she be granted a divorce, custody of the children and a reasonable amount of alimony.

Tyndall Also Plans to Hold Celebration

Tyndall is arranging to have a municipal celebration of Halloween on Friday night, October 29. The celebration will begin with a masquerade parade at 7 o'clock and will conclude with a big public entertainment at Central hall. A feature of this will be the "Who's Who?" guessing contest.

Attachment Case Is Taken Higher

The attachment case of M. O. Sherretts vs. Daniel Derringer, both of Bethlehem township, was appealed by the defendant to the court of common pleas at a hearing before Justice E. G. Abbott Tuesday afternoon. The suit was instituted to recover a sum of money from the hands of the clerk of courts into whose hands it had passed after collection from Sherretts on another attachment proceedings instituted early by Derringer. Two motions to dismiss the case filed by the defendant were overruled.

Poker Players Are Given Fines

When arraigned before the mayor Sunday morning on a charge of operating a poker game, Martin Holmes, of North Fifth street pleaded guilty and was given the minimum fine of $50 and costs. Mano Zetty, Jack Wolfe, jr. J. Lennon, H. Bible, George Haller, Bill Smith, Raymond Pharion, Clyde Breckmaster, Rob Thornsby and Jack Sweeney each pleaded guilty to participating in the game which was in progress when the police raided the Holmes residence on North Fifth street at an early hour Sunday morning. Each was fined $10 and costs and ordered to pay the costs and $5, the other $5 being held over their heads as a pledge for good behavior.

Licenses Are Granted to 20

[illegible] the twenty [illegible] liquor license in Coshocton county were granted licenses by the county liquor licensing board [illegible]. The applications were [illegible] with the exception of Daniel Harris, who took over the saloon of his brother Thomas Harris, after the latter's death.

This leaves Coshocton with three less saloons than number allowed, there having been no applications for the other three.

Those now holding licenses are: E. E. Standen, Douglas & Morris, Joseph Pash, A. J. Michael, Darling & Wills, Daniel Lewis, Andrew J. Stewart, J. W. Michael, Maud Tatten, T. S. Elson, Rager & Tomblin, Edward E. McManus, James Kinney, McCloud Duskin, Jacob H. Holmes, George H. [illegible], Daniel Harris, Edward Young, W. Q. Barnes & Company, [illegible] M. Gross.

MILO C. ELY, Notary Public

Our creditors want the money and we're making the greatest sacrifices on highest grade Men's Ladies' and Children's Wearing Apparel any Coshocton store has ever made, in order to raise the cash quick. Various conditions in the mercantile world has forced us to a position that spells trouble if we do not raise the cash at once. For this reason you will get the biggest bona fide bargains of a life time, for it seldom happens that a merchant is COMPELLED TO RAISE MONEY AT THE BEGINNING OF A SEASON WHEN HE OUGHT, BY ALL RIGHTS, TO GET HIS LEGITIMATE PROFITS. No consideration is given the ruinous losses of this sale. We'll pay off every penny we owe, if slashesand hammered down prices will do the trick; and we think they will, judging by the tremendous business that has already been showered upon us.

BURIED ALIVE BY A BRITISH SHELL

Wounded German Officer Describes Awful Plight.

PINNED DOWN IN DUGOUT.

Almost Entire Company That Occupied a Bombproof Trench Wiped Out by One Missile—Picture of Horror Greeted Few Survivors Who Saw Companions Buried.

Some frank tributes to the efficacy of the British artillery in Flanders are paid by a wounded German officer in the course of a narrative published in German newspapers received here, says the Pall Mall Gazette. The writer appears to have been in command of a company in the enemy trenches before Ypres, and he mentions that for three days his men have hardly had any sleep.

"The English," he says, "are sending us along explosive shells, shrapnel and mines in motley succession, and today the English shells have been dropping better than before in our trenches and dugouts.

"I gave the order 'Half the party stand; the other half lie down with bayonets fixed beside you,' and I seated myself in the last dugout that could be found. It was a battery observation post with two officers, a noncommissioned officer and a telephone operator. I sat down on the earth with them and awaited events.

Fire Was Accurate.

"Hardly had we crept under when the first shell arrived. With a 'woo-ee-ee-ee-crash-boom!' it burst close to us. Dirt, pieces of iron, stones and all kinds of scraps flew around us and among them a full tin of English preserved meat. A glance showed me that the shell had burst in a British trench close at hand which the English had been careful to evacuate during their artillery fire because of the danger, and the explosion had blown the tin over to us.

"The second shell burst considerably closer. 'First shot good; second might have been a bit shorter,' reported Lieutenant K. from his battery observation post.

"The third British shell whistles along toward us, near indeed. The English are shooting devilish well today. Silent and grave, our men lie down on the ground. Nobody moves from his place.

"Another shell falls in our immediate neighborhood, and a column of dirt and shell fragments spurts into the air. Things are getting more and more uncomfortable. Lieutenant L. opines 'that was devilish near, though.'

Shell Destroys Dugout.

"The telephone again talks. 'Battery asking how the last shots were placed.' 'First shot placed'— The reply is suddenly broken off, for at this moment comes a stunning crash and then the silence of death. A moment of unconsciousness follows; we can see and hear nothing, and the darkness of night is about us. We are buried! Despairing shouts of 'Help, help!' go round.

"A shell has fallen right on our dugout and destroyed it. I was stuck fast, over the head in sand, hardly able to open my eyes and unable to shout. With toil I craned my neck up a little, and then, right opposite me, I saw a very feeble glimmer of light. Pieces of timber and iron rails were lying on my body. I tried to lift myself up a bit more, but sand fell on me again. At last I managed to free my head.

"A picture of horror greeted me. Wounded men were lying amid sand and wreckage—groans of agony of buried and wounded companions.

"The direct hit of the shell had completely destroyed our 'bomb proof' dugout. The noncommissioned officer had been killed and the two artillery officers severely wounded. It was the most fearful of all my experiences in this war."

STOP HEAD NOISES CURE CATARRH AND PREVENT DEAFNESS

If you are troubled with Nasal Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness, Catarrhal Headache, head noises, dullness and that stuffed-up feeling, with frequent sneezing, sneezing spells, Sore Throat, Asthma, Hay Fever or kindred affections, just try a tube of NOSTRIOLA.

NOSTRIOLA is thoroughly reliable, and is now sold and recommended by all druggists.

The nostrils and air passages are the breeding places for the Catarrh, Hay Fever and other disease breeding germs. NOSTRIOLA is intended to clean the head and purify, soothe and strengthen the linings of the air passages so they are able to resist and throw off disease germs.

NOSTRIOLA will surely please you. Get a small tube of your druggist today, and you'll wish you had tried NOSTRIOLA sooner.

An Easy Way To Get Fat And Be Strong

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to reliable druggists almost everywhere which seemingly embodies the missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This modern treatment is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh-builders. Sargol aims through regenerative, reconstructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to the starved, broken-down cells and tissues of your body. You can readily picture what result this amazing transformation should produce as with increased weight the cheeks fill out, hollows about neck, shoulders and bust disappear and from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh is added to the body. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Wimmer-Arnold Drug Co. and other leading druggists of this vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

NOTE:—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.

WAKING DREAMS.

A Long Series of Events Can Be Crowded Into a Few Seconds.

It is more than likely that the great majority of dreams belong to the few moments when we are falling off to sleep and the equally brief time we take to wake up. In fact, nothing is more fully established than the fact that an apparently long dream can unfold itself in an infinitesimal space of time.

Alfred Maury relates how he had a long and vivid dream of the reign of terror in France, which included his trial before the revolutionary tribunal and his execution. He actually felt the guillotine fall. Yet that dream from beginning to end was actually caused by the fall of a curtain rod which struck him on the neck and woke him up. The whole lengthy dream lasted really a couple of seconds.

A well known writer in London was sitting up late writing something he much wished to finish. Suddenly some one came into the room and announced that he was called to go to Manchester. He went out and packed his bag and went to that city, where he stayed several days and saw innumerable people. He returned in due course and transacted a lot of business in town and actually contracted for and started a new book.

Yet when he woke with a start and found it was all a dream the ink of the last word he had written was as fresh and needed the blotting paper as much as if it had only just been written. He could not have dozed longer than ten seconds.—Pearson's.

SPOILED HIS FISHING.

An easterner was spending his first summer in Montana, says the Washington Star, where he had a good opportunity to indulge in his favorite sport of trout fishing. One afternoon he had been unusually successful, but just as he was setting out for camp with a heavy string of fish he caught sight of a great pine that had blown down and was lying with its top in the water—just the place for hooking a [illegible].

Pushing along to the fallen pine, he climbed upon it by dint of hard scrambling, fishing as best he could with his rod in one hand and his string of fish in the other. The tree was close to the bank, and the stream was running bank full. He was in the midst of [illegible] when suddenly an immense bear rose up close beside him.

There was no hesitation. To run was impossible. On the impulse of the moment the man dashed his string of trout full in the bear's face. In doing so he lost his balance, and the next instant there was a tremendous splash, and he disappeared in the rushing water.

The fisherman emerged some distance farther down the stream and, scrambling to the bank, looked back. There on the pine sat the bear, intently watching the hole where he had disappeared. He did not go back to inform her that he was not there, but made for camp at good speed!

Backache Is Discouraging

But Not So Bad If You Know How to Reach the Cause.

Nothing more discouraging than a constant backache. Lame when you awaken, pains pierce you when you bend or lift. It's hard to work or to rest. Backache often indicates bad kidneys. Coshocton people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this case.

Mrs. B. E. B[illegible], [illegible] Ave., Coshocton, says: "My kidneys were weak and I had backache. I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Siegrist & Williams' Drug Store, and they brought me relief." (Statement given Nov. 12, 1914.)

On Sept. 12, 1915, Mrs. Baker said: "I haven't had any symptoms of kidney complaint since my kidneys were put in good order by Doan's Kidney Pills three years ago. I think that speaks well for this medicine."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Baker has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

The greatest enemy of your teeth

When scientists recently discovered the cause of that dread disease, pyorrhea, they discovered the greatest enemy of your teeth. Why greatest? Because the germ that causes this disease inhabits every human mouth!

Your dentist will tell you that half of all the permanent teeth lost are lost from this disease. This is because people have not realized before that everyone should take precautions against this enemy. You can start now to ward off its constant attack and escape the terrible results of this disease by using the proper corrective and preventive treatment in your daily toilet.

To meet the need for treatment and to enable everyone to take precautions against this disease, a prominent dentist has put his own prescription before the public in the convenient form of Senreco Tooth Paste.

Senreco contains the best corrective and preventive for pyorrhea known to dental science. Used daily it will successfully protect your teeth from this disease. Senreco also contains the best harmless agent for keeping the teeth clean and white. It has a refreshing flavor and leaves a wholesomely clean, cool and pleasant taste in the mouth.

Start the Senreco treatment tonight—full details in the folder wrapped around every tube. Symptoms described. A 25c two oz. tube is sufficient for six or eight weeks of the pyorrhea treatment. Get Senreco at your druggists today, or send 4c in stamps or coin for sample tube and folder. Address The Sentanel Remedies Co., 502 Union Central Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.

THE FARMER VOTE DECIDING FACTOR

Full Rural Vote Means That Ohio Will Go Dry.

WETS ARE ON DEFENSIVE

Big Registration Means Heavy Vote In the Cities, but Drys Will Poll Their Full Vote In Municipalities, and a Full Vote In Farming Districts Will Make Ohio a Dry State.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—The result of the wet and dry election in Ohio next week depends largely on the farmer vote.

If the rural sections poll a full vote the state will go dry, assert prohibition leaders, while the wets admit they are pinning their hope of victory to a full wet vote in the large cities and a big stay-at-home vote in the country and smaller municipalities.

The registration is heavy in Cleveland and Cincinnati—heavier than in any previous year. There is a slight decrease in Columbus, Toledo and Dayton as compared with last year, but an increase over the registration in these cities two years ago.

Is there fraudulent registration in Cincinnati? It is significant that Cincinnati with 265,000 less population than Cleveland has registered within 10,000 as many voters. Every precaution is being taken to insure an honest election in Cincinnati and other cities. Deputy sheriffs selected by the drys will be on duty.

The drys in the cities worked systematically to register all their voters and many observers believe the heavy registration will be beneficial to the dry cause.

It is imperative that every dry citizen in the country goes to the polls. As A. L. Taber, master of the Ohio State Grange, says, "It is far more important for every farmer to be at the polls this year than at any other election. If the liquor interests win through the indifference of the farmer, they will be encouraged to repeat other issues in off years and the farmer will be at their mercy."

Dry voters all over the state should make it a point to go to the polls early, urge dry leaders. Not only should they vote early, but they should arrange to give the day to getting the dry vote polled. Get in touch with your local dry organization and if you are not needed for work in your own precinct all day, put yourself at the disposal of your [illegible] and work [illegible] dry [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible]

Lime Starvation Causes Tuberculosis

The Medical Record (New York) of December 18, 1909, contains an article on "The Treatment of Pulmonary Tuberculosis, Based on the Assumption That the Dietetic Cause of the Disease is Lime Starvation," by Dr. John F. Russell, who says: "The condition which is recognized as preceding the active development of tuberculosis in the adult may be considered as due to lime starvation. * * * Among inorganic substances lime salts appear to be of special physiological importance * * * but if the salts are not in organic combination it is difficult to suppose that the cells can appropriate them for food."

Years of widespread use confirm us in the belief that the success of Eckman's Alterative in cases of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) and chronic throat and bronchial troubles is due in large measure to its content of lime, so combined with other constituents as to be easily appropriated by the cells.

Doubtless this has had much to do with the results obtained in many cases of these affections, which appear to have yielded to Eckman's Alterative.

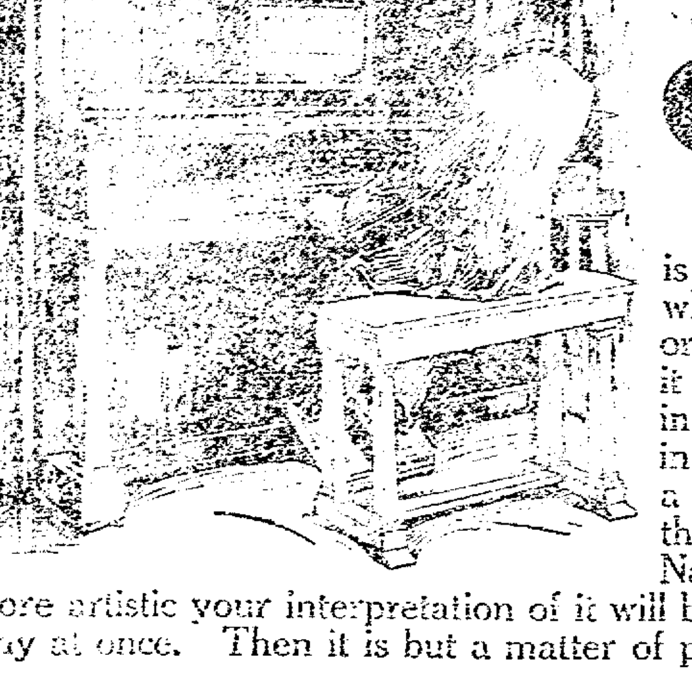
"The Quality Goes IN Before the Name Goes ON"



The Crown Combinola

is a Crown Piano into which has been built a device which enables anyone, whether musically educated or not, to play any musical selection. In no way does it interfere with playing by hand, so that in the single instrument you have a piano of the familiar type and, in addition, a player-piano upon which anyone, even a child, can play any selection written for the piano, thus placing the world of music at your command. Naturally, the more familiar you are with music, the more artistic your interpretation of it will be. But the fact remains that anyone can play and play at once. Then it is but a matter of practice to make you rival the finished musician.

An Artistic Instrument

And please do not get the erroneous impression that the Crown Combinola is mechanical, for it is not. There is but one thing the player does—it strikes the notes perfectly, just as the trained musician does. The time in which the selection is played, the soft pianissimo, the loud forte, the sharp accent, the phrasing—in fact the entire color and expression of the music are at the command of and brought out by the individuality of the performer. And being subject to this impression of personality, the Crown Combinola is truly an artistic instrument. You have heard pianists play brilliantly with absolutely correct technique, without errors, and with ease and surety in striking the keys, yet who left you cold and uninterested. So the Combinola, which never makes mistakes, may be played when first you operate it. But, as you play some piece you have always liked, you will unconsciously retard or accelerate the time—sustain and linger over some cherished notes as if they were too pleasing to pass rapidly by. Here, in a spirited passage, you subdue the accompanying bass to bring out the melody in the treble—leading up from the soft pianissimo to the loud forte, accelerating to the crashing finale. And the applause is all that is lacking—and even that will not be withheld if you have an audience.

Can You Appreciate the Pleasure of Producing Such Music Yourself and Whenever You Please?

The Piano Itself

As you probably know, the Player-piano is used many more times than the silent piano in the home, and the music is of a heavier nature than is usual in hand playing. Naturally, this extra use means greater wear on the piano. Then, too, the size of the ordinary piano would not permit of installing the player mechanism without muffling or otherwise injuring the tone because of crowding or "stuffing" the case.

All these points and many others have been considered and scientifically taken care of in the construction of the Combinola Player-piano. The piano itself is the highest type of piano construction. The case has been made wider and deeper to admit the player action without injury to tone—allowing just the proper space inside to insure that full, rich, brilliant tone which is approached only in the best makes. The entire equipment (hammers, etc.) is designed to withstand just such usage as a Player-piano receives, and is in accordance with the latest and best ideas in scientific piano construction. And a visit to the Geo. P. Bent Company's Factory will convince the most skeptical that these splendid results are but the fruit of natural causes—carefully planned and still more carefully carried out.

Your old piano taken in exchange at a liberal allowance. Estimates furnished FREE upon request and with no obligation on your part.

Marine Magnesia.

Chemical analyses of starfishes, sea urchins and crinoids, collected from all parts of the world, show that the skeletons of these animals contain much magnesia. The percentage of magnesia is highest in those specimens that lived in tropical waters and lowest in forms from the icy seas of Greenland and the Antarctic, with a regular gradation between which even shows the local effect of cold ocean currents upon life at the sea bottom.

Attractive Autumn Party.

One of the most attractive of the autumn social functions was the sewing party at which Mrs. C. B. Hunt entertained about fifty guests at her home on Main street, Tuesday afternoon. Magnificent gold and white chrysanthemums formed the only decorations. During the afternoon Mrs. E. D. Patterson favored the guests with a group of vocal selections and was accompanied by Mrs. B. F. Voorhees. At five o'clock a delicious two course supper was served, the spirit of Hallowe'en appearing in the refreshments.

Miss Alice Hunt and Miss Elsie McKinley admitted the guests at the door and assisting Mrs. Hunt were: Mrs. Rollin Barnes, Mrs. James Preston, Mrs. B. F. Voorhees, Mrs. F. E. Pomerene, Mrs. D. O. Thompson, Mrs. L. P. Gallagher, Mrs. George Gray and Miss Caroline Hunt.

Mrs. Hunt will entertain with a second party on Thursday.

A mother writes: "Our children are all so much better and stonger than they ever were before we made a change in the character of the food. We have quit using potatoes three times a day with coffee and so much meat.

"Now we give the little folks some fruit, either fresh, stewed, or canned, some Grape-Nuts with cream, occasionally some soft boiled eggs, and some Postum for breakfast and supper. Then for dinner they [illegible] some meat and vegetables.

"It would be hard to fully describe the change in the children, they have grown so sturdy and strong, and we attribute the change to the food elements that I understand, exists in Grape-Nuts and Postum.

"A short time ago my baby was teething and had a great deal of stomach and bowel trouble. Nothing seemed to agree with him, so I tried Grape-Nuts softened and mixed with rich milk and he improved rapidly and got sturdy and well."

Corn fodder, pumpkins, autumn leaves and bitter sweet, over which a soft red light was glowing transformed the basement of Grace M. E. church into a [illegible] land, on the occasion of the Hallowe'en party enjoyed last evening by members of the Young Woman's Christian Organization and their guests. At either end of the long room was a camp fire with the kettle swinging above it, in which were found the fortunes of all who came by.

About one hundred and fifty participated in the affair, the greater number of whom came in fantastic masquerade costumes. There were clowns, gypsies, fairies, Indians, Turks, cats and donkeys all defying indentification until the time came to remove masks. The guests were divided into family groups and each family required to do a stunt. Among the most original was that of the Ford family all of whom came riding in on a car of the family name. Another clever one was that of the Cat family, with Miss Helen McManus at its head. There were other forms of entertainment in keeping with the occasion and during the evening doughnuts and coffee were served.

Guests of the organization were the men who assisted in the Oliver Cromwell production last week.

Home Guards Meet.

PERSONAL LIBERTY

The [illegible] great stress [illegible] they [illegible] their "Personal Liberty." [illegible] impossible, under the existing [illegible] "personal liberty" in the broadest [illegible].

A man [illegible] as in the case of Robinson Crusoe, could [illegible] to some [illegible]. But with the coming of a single individual to that island neither the first nor the second to arrive could enjoy complete personal liberty. As soon as the rights of one [illegible] with the rights of the other, the rights of both would have to be curtailed.

As population [illegible] become more complex. The rights [illegible] individual enjoys in a primitive state become greatly [illegible] highly complex civilization. So, the rights of the liquor dealer, both as an individual and as the vendor of intoxicants, must necessarily change as the social compact changes, as people's views change, as civilization advances and as population grows and the [illegible], social and industrial fabric becomes more closely interwoven.

Do not the [illegible] realize that a tax on liquor is an abridgement of their personal liberty? Do they not know that an increase in the tax, such as we have had here in Ohio, from $300 to $500 and then to $1,000, are all restrictions of their personal liberty? Is it not practically as much of a denial of their personal liberty to limit the number of saloons to one to each 1,000 of population as it would be to limit them to one to each 500 of population?

If the law were to say that in Ohio there shall henceforth be only one saloon to each 5,000 inhabitants, would that not be depriving them of personal liberty only in a less degree than if the law were to say that henceforth there shall be in Ohio no saloons at all? Would not the deprivation of personal liberty in each case be only one of degree and not of principle? If the law says there shall be only one saloon to each 500 people does it not deprive 499 people of their rights to run a saloon?

Where the statutes declare that there shall be no treating in saloons do they not deprive the vendor of his personal liberty to make sales in any way he sees fit and do they not deny the patrons their personal liberty to purchase and give away beverage intoxicants? Is not [illegible] against Sunday selling a similar infringement of personal liberty? Is not the statute against selling to minors a similar divestment of personal liberty?

There is only one answer to all these questions and they all tend plainly to show that this vague thing we call "personal liberty" is a mere abstraction having no fixed status, which changes with changing social conditions and which always has been and always must be dependent on the will of the majority.

The dictum of "The greatest good to the greatest number" determines the degree of personal liberty by the people of any state. The slaughter house on the outskirts of a city excites no comment so long as it is on the outskirts. When the city grows up to it and around it, it becomes an intolerable nuisance. And when, under changed conditions, it becomes a nuisance, neither a regard for the "personal liberty" of the owner to maintain a nuisance nor a regard for his savings will restrain the exercise of the people's inalienable rights to have the nuisance abated.

And, under a steadily advancing civilization, if the American people choose to brand the public traffic in beverage intoxicants a nuisance, they have not only a moral, but a perfect legal right, as decided by our courts from the highest to the lowest, to abate it, either partially or totally, as they see fit.

A coffin factory in Pennsylvania has been converted into a shop where toys are made. This tends to even things up, as the German toy factories are now doubtless making coffins.

Bull Moosers announce that the Colonel will "talk from time to time" on the issues of the day. What a relief it is to know that there will be intervals when he won't talk.

They are talking as much about "national honor" and "patriotism" down in Mexico as they are in Europe, which leads one to doubt the quality of both in those quarters.

It is true the cost of living is higher now than ever, but on the other hand people can save more now than ever before simply by refraining from buying things.

A scientist says we breathe a hundred thousand microbes every day. Isn't it a good thing a microbe isn't as big as an English sparrow?

Kidney and Bladder Trouble Causes Great Distress

For four years I was troubled by hemorrhages from the bladder and was not able to get any doctor who could help me. I was in such shape that sleep at night was impossible on account of distressing symptoms. While bending over I would be stricken with such a pain that it was impossible for me to straighten up. Mr. Henry, one of our leading druggists, advised Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root; although I never had any faith in patent medicine, as a last resort I purchased a dollar bottle of Swamp-Root. I noticed a decided change and after using two bottles I was completed cured. It seemed remarkable that I should be cured so quickly after being ill so long. But since this took place nearly two years ago, I have never been troubled and would highly advise any one suffering from the same trouble to at least give Swamp-Root a trial and I think the results will be the same as mine.

Yours very truly,
THOMAS A. BENNETT,
Greensburg, Indiana

Personally appeared before me this 14th day of February, 1913, Mr. T. A. Bennett, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

Origin of Heraldry

According to the highest authorities, heraldry finds its starting point in the totemism of prehistoric man. In the barbaric custom of painting or carving the totem on oars, the bows and sides of canoes, weapons, pillars in front of houses, etc., and in tattooing it on the various parts of the body we have the real origin of the insignia that are so precious to the upper tendom of today. It was in the ignorant superstition of the savage that he sprang from a crane or a bear or some other animal that the various "coats of arms" of the "big families" of the present time found their inception.—New York American.

Under the Second Empire

By JOHN TURNLEE

Henry Hitchcock after being graduated from a medical college in America went to Paris, which was then the center of medical science of the world, to complete his education. That was in the days of the second empire, and Paris was a gay city. An acquaintance with one of the American branch of the Bonaparte family who had been summoned by Napoleon III. to join him on his accession to the throne of France gained Hitchcock an introduction to the court circle.

One evening during a ball at the Tuileries the American was sauntering through the apartments, crowded with the new aristocracy of France. A couple, an elderly man, highly decorated, and a young girl, approached him.

The man was coarse looking; the girl was comely and refined. They seemed ill matched, and, while the man appeared from his expression to court the girl's favor, she was plainly ill at ease in his company. In advance of Hitchcock walked a young man, who on meeting the couple bowed ceremoniously. His salute was returned by a glance from the girl that clearly bespoke love. Her companion returned the salute with a malignant scowl. Since the young man's back was toward Hitchcock, his face was not visible to him.

The doctor drew his inference, which was by no means doubtful. The older man had come between the young lovers.

This was the theme of the story; the story itself was not manifest.

The next day Hitchcock's Bonaparte friend called upon him and asked him to act as attendant surgeon at a duel. The principals were of high rank, one of them being an intimate friend of the emperor. The affair was to be kept secret, and Hitchcock was summoned because he was a foreigner and there was less danger of its leaking out through him than a Frenchman. He agreed to serve, promising to be present at a spot in the Bois de Boulogue the next morning at dawn.

On reaching the ground he found the principals masked. They fought with foils, and one was severely wounded. After binding up the wound the doctor got into a carriage with his patient and drove to his apartments.

Unmasked, the wounded man revealed the face of a person of twenty-one or twenty-two years of age. Hitchcock watched over him during the morning, when, believing him to be out of danger, he left him. Returning at nightfall, he surprised two women, one of whom was kneeling by his patient's bedside.

Her figure was very youthful, while her companion, who stood apart, appeared to be an elderly person. The latter wore a mask on her face, the former had taken one off, but hearing the doctor's footsteps hastily replaced it. Then, rising, she turned, hesitated, put out her hand to the patient as if for an adieu, when, noticing a sudden pallor come over his face, she started. Hitchcock saw it, too, and sprang to the bed, pulled down the covers and discovered a fresh hemorrhage.

"A cloth!" he cried.

Whether through excitement at receiving his visitor or from other cause the wound had begun to bleed afresh. The doctor stopped the flow, then turned. A young girl whose mask lay on the floor stood before him.

She was the girl he had noticed at the Tuileries ball.

She gave no sign of having seen him before, and he controlled an impulse of recognition.

"It's all right, doctor," said the patient. "Since you have come to know me and now have seen the face of this young lady I suppose we shall have to take you into our confidence. When one possesses half a secret it is unsafe to keep from him the other half."

"Not now," interrupted the doctor; "wait till you are entirely out of danger. Your secret is safe enough as it is."

The young man was Count Victor Perone, a scion of the old French nobility, and was the person who had saluted the couple at the Tuileries ball. He was in love with Louise, the grandniece of Napoleon I. The man with whom the count had fought was the Duke de ——, a Bonapartist. The emperor had arranged a marriage between the duke and Louise, his grace having been of great use to him in executing the coup d'etat by which he had seized the crown. Napoleon was not averse to marriages between the members of his family and the old nobility of France, but the state had set his heart on Louise and would not be gainsaid. The count was [illegible] and a strong [illegible] and the imbroglio had ended in the duel. Both principals feared the emperor's resentment that would result if he should hear of the encounter, and arrangements were made to keep it a secret in case there should be no fatal result. Louise heard that her lover was dangerously wounded and with a friend visited him secretly.

The count recovered, and about the same time the war between France and Prussia broke out. The lover went to the war, and on his return, the emperor having been dethroned, there was no one to oppose his marriage with the one he loved. The Napoleonic dynasty has never since been restored to the sovereignty of France, nor have the royalists. The pair lived long in France, and their grandsons are now officers in the French army.

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

CHANGED ONE LETTER.

How a Serious Political Crisis In Canada Was Averted.

At the period when British Columbia was threatening to withdraw from the Dominion of Canada because the Carnarvon settlement had been ignored by the Mackenzie administration the late Lord Dufferin took part in a public function in Quebec.

While the procession was moving through the principal streets a gentleman, breathless with excitement, hurried up to his excellency's carriage to say a "rebel" arch had been placed across the road so as to identify the viceroy with the approval of the disloyal inscription thereon.

"Can you tell me what words there are on the arch?" quietly asked Dufferin.

"Oh, yes!" replied his informant. "They are 'Carnarvon Terms or Separation.'"

"Send the committee to me," commanded his excellency. "Now, gentlemen," said he, with a smile to the committee, "I'll go under your beautiful arch on one condition. I won't ask you to do much, and I beg but a trifling favor. I merely ask that you alter one letter in your motto. Turn the S into an R—make it 'Carnarvon Terms or Reparation'—and I will gladly pass under it."

The committee yielded, and eventually Dufferin contrived to smooth over the difficulties and to reconcile the malcontents.

SENSES OF TREES.

Mr. James Rodway, who is the curator of the British Guiana museum and an eminent botanist, declares that plants have at least three of our five senses—feeling, taste and smell—and that certain tropical trees smell water from a distance and will move straight toward it.

But trees not in the tropics can do as well. A resident of an old Scottish house, says a writer in the Scotsman, found the waste pipe from the house repeatedly choked. Lifting the slabs in the basement paving, he discovered that the pipe was completely invaded by poplar roots. They belonged to a tree that grew some thirty yards away on the opposite side of the house.

Thus the roots had moved steadily toward the house and had penetrated below the foundation and across the basement until they reached their goal, the waste pipe, 150 feet away. Then they had pierced a cement joining and had worked their way in long, tapering lengths inside the pipe for a considerable distance beyond the house.

There seems something almost human in such unerring instinct and perseverance in surmounting obstacles.

And Yet They Say Authors Are Poor.

Authors may not now scorn the offer of money for their work, but they really do sometimes fail to cash checks, according to the cashier of the Century company. "I don't know what they do with the checks," he said in commenting to a friend the other day, "unless they frame them. Though acknowledgments have proved the receipt of the checks, I am always carrying on the books corresponding accounts that I can't close up for months, sometimes years. I remember especially one check issued to a famous poet and author. He died a number of years ago. The check was made out anew to the estate. Still it is uncashed. There is more than one author I'd bless if he—it is usually he—would only go and get his money."

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Juanita H[illegible], a Philadelphia young woman of wealth, on her journey with her guide, Good Anse Talbott, into the heart of the Cumberlands to become a teacher of the mountain children faints at the door of [illegible] McNash's cabin. While resting there she overhears a talk between Bad Anse Havey, chief of his clan, and one of his henchmen that acquaints her with the Havey-McBriar feud.

CHAPTER II—Juanita has an unprofitable talk with Bad Anse and they become [illegible].

CHAPTER V—Juanita and Dawn McNash become friends.

CHAPTER VI—Cal Douglas is acquitted. [illegible] Wyatt attempts to kill him but is himself killed by the Haveys.

CHAPTER VIII—Juanita thinks she finds that Bad Anse is opposing her efforts to buy land and build a school.

CHAPTER X—Bad Anse is bitter [illegible] He does not [illegible] women and will give her land if necessary.

"[illegible]," she quietly answered. "I was to be inspected like an immigrant, and the lord of the land was to decide whether or not I should be sent back."

"Put it that way if ye've a mind to," he answered. "Ye was comin' to be a schoolteacher here. Well, I'd done been a schoolteacher here. I see your smile—ye're wonderin' what I could teach. Maybe, after all, it's a right good idea to teach A B C's before ye starts in with algebra an' rhetoric. Ye wouldn't have me as a friend, an' I reckon that won't break my heart."

"Then," said the girl, looking up and meeting his eyes with a flash of challenge, "I shall endeavor to get along without your favor. We could hardly have met on common ground at best. I shall teach the ten commandments, including 'Thou shalt not kill.' I shall teach that to lie hidden behind a bush and shoot an unsuspecting enemy is cowardly and despicable. I would not be willing to tell them that they must live and die vassals to feudal tyranny."

"No," he agreed, "ye couldn't hardly outrage your holy conscience by tryin' to teach 'em things in a way they could understand, could ye? If Jeb had come to ye, like he came to me, askin' the name of the man he sought to kill, ye would have said ter him, 'It was so-and-so, but ye mustn't harm him, because somebody writ in a book two thousand years ago that killin' is a sin.' An' the hell of it is ye'd low such talk would satisfy him.

"Ye couldn't do no such wicked thing as to stop an' reflect that he's a [illegible] boy, an' that for two hundred years the blood in his veins hes been a comin' down to him full of grudge-nursin' an' hate. Ye couldn't make allowances for the fact that he wasn't hatched in a barnyard to peck at corncobs an' berries, but in an eagle's nest—that he's a bird of prey. Ye couldn't consider the fact that the killin' instinct runs in the current of his blood an' was drunk in at his mother's breast. Ye'd just teach barnyard lessons to young eagles, an' that's why ye might as well go home."

"I'm grateful for this teacher's course," said Juanita hotly, "and I'm not going home."

Anse Havey went on:

"But I know that boy. I know that if I'd talked thataway he'd just about have gone out in the la'rel an' got somebody. Hit might not 'a' been the right feller, and he might have found that out later. I reckon ye never had a father murdered, did ye?"

"Hardly," answered the girl with a scornful toss of her head. "You see, I wasn't reared among gun-fighters."

"Well, I have," responded the man. "I was in the legislature down at Frankfort when it happened, a-helpin' to make the laws that govern this state. I was for them laws in theory—but when that word came I paired off with a Republican, so's not to lose my vote on the floor, an' I come back here to these hills an' got that feller. I reckon I ought to be ashamed to tell ye that, but I'm so plumb ign'rant tha' I can't feel it. I knew how Jeb felt an' so I held him off with a promise to wait. Of course ye couldn't accept the help of a man like that."

He turned and withdrew his hands from his pockets.

"I'm through," he added, "an' I'm obleeged to ye for harkenin' to me."

"There is something in your point of view, Mr. Havey," she acknowledged. "But it is all based on twisted and distorted principle.

"I don't think myself a saint. I guess I'm pretty weak. My first appeal to you was pure weakness. But I stand for ideas that the world has acknowledged to be right, and for that reason I am going to win. That is why, although I'm a girl, with none of your physical power, and no gunfighters at my back, you are secretly afraid of me. That is why you are making unfair war on me. I stand for the implacable force of civilization that must sooner or later sweep you away and utterly destroy your dominance."

For the first time Bad Anse Havey's face lost its impassiveness. His eyes clouded and became puzzled, surprised.

"I reckon I don't hardly follow ye," he said. "If ye wants it to be enemies all right, but I ain't never made no war on ye. I don't make war on womenfolks, an' besides I wouldn't make a needless war nohow. All I've got to do is to give ye enough rope an' watch ye hang yourself."

"If you think that," she demanded, with a quick upleaping of anger in her pupils, "why did you feel it necessary to prevent my buying land? Why do you coerce your vassals, under fear of death, to decline my offers? Why, if my school means no menace, do you refuse it standing room to start its fight?"

The man's pose stiffened.

"Who told ye I'd hindered anybody from sellin' ye land?"

"Wherever I inquire it is the same thing. They must ask permission of Bad Anse Havey before they can do as they wish with their own."

"By heaven, that's another lie," he said shortly. "But I reckon ye believe that, too. I did advise folks hereabouts against sellin' to strangers, but that was afore ye come."

He paced the length of the room a while, then halted before her.

"Some of that property," he went on, and this time his voice was passionate in its earnestness, "has enough coal an' timber on it to make its owners rich some day. Have ye seen any of the coal-minin' sections of these hills? Well, go an' have a look. Ye won't find any mountaineer richer for the development. Ye'll find 'em plundered an' cheated an' robbed of their homes by your civilized furriner. I've done aimed ter pertect my folks against bein' looted. I aims to go on pertectin' 'em."

"Ignorance won't protect them," she insisted.

"I told ye we was distrustful of furriners," went on Havey. "Some day there'll be a bigger war here than the Havey-McBriar war. Ye've seen something of that. That other war will be with your people, an' when it comes there won't be any McBriars or Haveys. We'll all be mountaineers standin' together an' holdin' what God gave us. God knows I hate Milt McBriar an' his tribe—hate 'em with all the power of hatin' that's in me, an' I'm a mountain man. But Milt's people an' my people have one thing in common. We're mountain men, an' these hills are ourn. We have the same killin' instinct when men seek to rob us. We want to be let alone, an' if we fight amongst ourselves it ain't nothin' to the way we'll fight, shoulder to shoulder an' back to back, against the robbers from down below."

The man paused, and as Juanita looked into his blazing eyes she shuddered, for it seemed that the killing instinct of which he spoke was burning there. She thought of nothing to say, and he continued:

"It's war between families now—but when your people come—come to buy for nothin' and fatten on our starvation, we men of the mountains will forget that, an' I reckon we'll fight together like all damnation against the rest. That's why I'm counselin' folks not to sell heedless."

"Then you did not forbid your people to sell to me?" inquired the girl.

"Why, in heaven's name, should I make war on ye?" he suddenly demanded. "Does a man fight children? We don't fight the helpless up here in the hills."

"Who Told You I Hindered Anybody From Selling You Land?"

"Possibly," she suggested with a trace of irony, "when you learn that I'm not so helpless you won't be so merciful."

"We'll wait till that time comes," said the man shortly. He paused for a moment, then went on: "Helpless! Why, heaven knows, ma'am, I pity ye. Can't ye see what odds ye're contendin' against? Can't ye see that ye're fightin' God's hills and sandstone an' winds an' thunder? Can't ye see ye're tryin' ter take out of men's veins the fire in their blood—the fire that's been burnin' there for two centuries? Ye're like a little child tryin' ter pull down a jail-house. Ye're singin' lullaby songs to the thunder. Yes, I feel right sorry fer ye, but I ain't a-fightin' ye."

"I'm doing none of those things," she answered with a defiant blaze in her eyes. "I'm only trying to show these people that their ignorance is not necessary—that it's only part of a scheme to keep them vassals. You talk about the wild, free spirit of the mountain men. I think that free men will listen to that argument."

Anse laughed.

"Change 'em!" he repeated, disregarding the [illegible] of her last speech. "Why, if ye [illegible] give it up and go back to [illegible] that pick at berries, do you know [illegible] will happen to ye? I'll tell ye [illegible] be a change but it won't be [illegible] It'll be in you. You'll be [illegible]ed.

"Ye can't [illegible] where the storms come from an' [illegible] the covers are born an' [illegible] their spirit get into your blood. [illegible] think ye're in partners [illegible] but I reckon ye'll find the h[illegible] bigger than ye'll be. How much [illegible] ye need?"

"Why?"

"Because [illegible] see ye get [illegible] say I'm [illegible] I aim to sh[illegible] ye how [illegible] scaired. I aim to let ye go [illegible] school way an' [illegible] der [illegible] quicksand. An' [illegible] nobody [illegible] what ye want [illegible] Almighty G[illegible] masse [illegible] of a farm an' I'll build ye [illegible] yself. That's how much I'm [illegible] ye. I've tried to be friends [illegible] an' ye won't have it. Now [illegible] far as ye feels inclined an' [illegible] much I mind ye."

CHAPTER XI.

That [illegible] Juanita's cabin rose on the [illegible] of ground bought from the W[illegible] [illegible]erson, for in those hills the raising of a house is a simple thing which goes forward subject to no delays [illegible] striking workmen or balking [illegible] The usual type, with its single room, may be reared in a few days by volunteers who turn their labor into a frolic. She had owed much to Jerry Everson and to Good Anse Talbott for had her building force been solidly of Havey or McBriar complexion the school would henceforth have stood branded, in native eyes, a feud institution.

But Good Anse and Jerry, who were tolerated by both factions, and were gifted with a rough-hewn diplomacy, had known upon whom to call even while they had seemed to select at random.

The cabin had been finished just before the news came of the death of Fletch McNash and Jerry Everson had gone over with her to survey and admire it.

As he stood under the newly laid roof, sniffing the fresh, woody fragrance of the green timbers he produced from under his coat what looked like a giant powder-horn. He had scraped and polished it until it shone like varnish, and he hung it by its leather thong above the hearth.

"What is it for, Jerry?" demanded the girl, and with that he took it down again and set it to his lips and blew.

A mellow sound, not loud, but far-carrying, like the fox hunter's tally-ho, floated over the valley.

"Our house hain't more than a whoop an' a holler away," he said awkwardly, "but when ye're livin' over hyar by yoreself, ef ye ever wants anything in ther nighttime, jest blow thet horn."

After she had almost burst her cheeks with effort, he added: "Don't never blow this signal onless ye wants ter raise merry hell."

Then he imitated very low, through pursed lips, three long blasts and three short ones.

"What's that signal?" she demanded.

"Ye've heered the McBriar yell," he told her. "Thet horn calls ther Havey rallyin' signal. When thet goes out every Havey thet kin tote a gun's got ter git up an' come. Hit means war."

"Thank you, Jerry. I won't call the Haveys to battle."

The night after she had flung her challenge down to Bad Anse Havey Juanita stayed at the McNash cabin to be with Dawn and the widow. The next day she went with them to the mountainside "buryin'-ground," where Good Anse performed the last rites for the dead.

After it was all over, and it had been decided that the widow was to take the younger children up Meetinghouse fork to live with a brother, the missionary and the teacher started back. Jeb was to stay here alone to run the farm, and when Juanita returned to the ridge Dawn went with her.

They were passing a tumbling waterfall, shrunken now to a trickling rill, when Dawn broke the long silence.

"Wunst, when I war a leetle gal," she said, "Unc' Perry war a-hiding out up thet branch from ther revenuers. I used ter fotch his victuals up thar ter him."

Juanita turned suddenly with a shocked expression. It was as if her little songbird friend had suddenly and violently reverted; as if the flower had turned to poison weed. And as Juanita looked Dawn's eyes were blazing and Dawn's face was as dark as her black hair—dark with the same expression which brooded on her brother's brow.

"What is it, dear?" Juanita asked, and in tense and fiery voice the younger girl exclaimed:

"I wishes I war a man. I wouldn't wait and set still like Jeb's doin'. By heaven, I'd git thet murderer. I'd cut his heart outen his body."

"I tole ye," quietly commented Brother Anse, "thet ther instinct's in ther blood. Anse Havey went down ter Frankfort an' set in ther legislater—but he come back ther same man thet went down. Somethin' called him. Somethin' calls ter every mountain man thet goes away, an' he harkens ter ther call."

"Anse come back," repeated Dawn triumphantly. "An' Anse is hyar. Ef Jeb sets thar an' don't do nothin', I reckon Anse Havey won't hardly let hit go by without doin' nothin'. Thank heaven, thar's some men left in ther hills like Anse Havey—but ef Jeb don't do nothin' I'll do hit myself."

Again Juanita shuddered, but it was not the time for argument, and so she went on, bitterly accusing Havey in her heart for his wizard hold on these people—a hold which incited them to [illegible] as the fanatical priests of the desert urge on their wild tribesmen.

Mr. Blakley, Dayton, Ohio, says:

"I was suffering from a prolonged and stubborn case of indigestion, which neither doctors or druggists were able to even relieve to any great extent. A few doses of your remedy, however, not only relieved the distress, but drove it away entirely, without any recurrence in the last ten days. I am consequently very thankful. I certainly will not, in the future, be without them, as my trouble was of long standing."

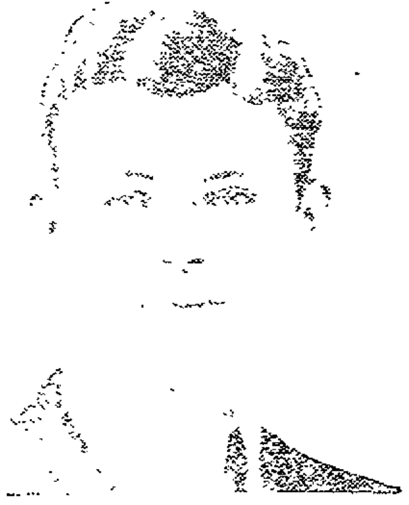
Indigestion May Be Due To Constipation

Neglect of Important Function May Seriously Impair The Health.

There are many people who believe they suffer from indigestion when their discomfort really is due to a constipated condition.

Bloat, with its attendant mental depression, sick-headache, the belching of sour stomach gases, etc., are frequently due to inaction of the bowels. Relieve the congestion and the trouble usually disappears. The use of cathartics and purgatives should be avoided, however; these shock the system unnecessarily and at best, their effect is but temporary. A mild laxative is far preferable.

The compound of simple laxative herbs known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and sold in drug stores for fifty cents a bottle, is highly recommended. Mr. Benj. Bassin, 580 Madison St., Gary, Ind., thinks Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin a wonderful medicine; for four years he had a severe case of indigestion and constipation before trying Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which he is glad to recommend to all who suffer with stomach and bowel trouble.



BENJ. BASSIN.

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin should be in every home for use when occasion arises. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 451 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.
